

South Carolina AV, Inc., PO Box 24707, Columbia, SC 29224 P: (803) 227-2981 C: (803) 261-0188

November 12, 2012 – Volume 1 -

In This Issue

- 1 Giving Thanks
- 2 New Inventory

Thanksgiving

This is the time of the year we all remember what we are thankful for. However, with so much uncertainty looming over taxes and the fiscal cliff there is enough worry to go around for a lot of small business owners.

With that said, I must say SCAV has experienced a very busy fall with bookings still running high. So I am very thankful for all our clients who have put their trust in us to handle their events. These days it seems that business sometimes does not come easy so I am most appreciative to those who chose SCAV. I am also thankful for all of our employees who have worked some tough hours over the last couple of months to make all this happen. So many people have no idea exactly what it requires to pull some of these events off from our end. Pre planning, loading trucks, traveling and setting up before we even power up the first piece of gear. Then after the show we do it all in reverse. All the best equipment in the world comes easy but it takes dedicated, trained people to make the magic happen.

With December not far away, we will be thankful but looking forward to a couple of quiet weeks before the new year rolls in to begin the process all over again.

Thanks to all who make SCAV possible.

New Inventory

This is the time of the year we begin to add to our inventory. SCAV just purchased 30 additional LED lights. These lights are extremely bright and were recently used to uplight the exterior of a 4 story building for a corporate fund raising event.

More to come later.