SCAV Works through Colorado Wildfires

During the height of the wildfires last week in Colorado Springs, SCAV got a close up look at the dangerous wildfires that raged through Colorado Springs. Although a “safe” distance from the inferno, the corporate meeting continued at The Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs.

Doug Polk, senior event manager and lead tech on the show reported that one morning there was enough smoke in the ballroom to produce the haze effect that is normally produced with hazer equipment.

The show continued as planned with the business sessions and entertainment for the evening. SCAV provided staging support including lighting and sound for a private concert with Jo Dee Messina.

Although we were safe, our hearts go out to those who lost their life and property in the historic wildfire.

New Web Site Launch

July will be an exciting month for SCAV. In addition to completing several major staging jobs for annual meetings, we will be launching our new web site. Progress has been steady and we have realized that a good thing is worth waiting on. Wade Wingard and his team have done a great job in producing our web site.

We think you will find it very interesting and filled with useful information about SCAV and the audiovisual event and staging industry.

We hope you will visit the new site at www.scav.com
